

SCIENTIFIC HATCHERIES DIET

FOR ZEBRAFISH (DANIO)

The Superior Food Developed by Dr. Dallas Weaver of Scientific Hatcheries is now available from Aquaneering, Inc.

The dry diet of Zebrafish (danio) is critically affected by the age, storage, humidity, temperature, and history of the food. In his experience at Scientific Hatcheries, where he produced over 100,000 adult zebra fish per week for ornamental and research markets, Dr. Weaver observed dramatic effects on fish from the quality of the food. One such observation was that fertility and embryo survivability significantly decreased when the dry food was over 90 days old. This problem was traced to an improperly rotated bag of feed. All dry food sold at Aquaneering is dated for freshness.

The Scientific Hatcheries 3 pigment formulation was used as a 100% diet or near 100% diet for all juvenile and adult/broodstock. Enriching the diet of zebra fish with artemia is also a widely accepted practice in aquaculture. Aquaneering stocks both types of food.
